

SILK'S SIN.

He Passed Through Sedalia This Morning, On His Way to St. Louis.

Detective Browning, of St. Louis, passed through Sedalia this morning, having in charge Arthur Silk, alias Reynolds, alias Bond, a young man who was some weeks ago, sent to the work house in Kansas City on a fine of $300 for vagrancy.

It seems that the prisoner is a very hard character, though only twenty-five years old. Some time ago he was jailed in the St. Louis city prison on a charge of burglary, but about five months ago he led a gang in an attempt to break jail, and so successful were they that five escaped, among the number being a man named Shea, who was under sentence of death.

Reynolds made his way to Kansas City, and a few weeks ago he made, as it is believed, an attempt to burglarize the pawnshop of J. M. Smith, on Main street, in that city. There was not evidence sufficient against him, however, to make out a case, and so he was simply tried on a charge of vagrancy, and the recorder found him guilty and gave him a fine of $300. Last Saturday Reynolds made an escape from the workhouse guards, but was recaptured after a few hours, and then the St. Louis authorities found he was the man that they had been looking for, for some time, and as a result Detective Browning was sent after him. He will now have the opportunity of answering to the double charge of burglary and jail breaking.

A SMALL FIRE.

S. C. Chaffin's Undertaking Establishment the Scene of Conflagration.

At a few minutes after seven o'clock, last night, smoke and flames were noticed issuing from the rear portion of S. C. Chaffin's two-story frame undertaking establishment, on Third street, south side, between Ohio and Lamine streets. An alarm was sounded, and in a brief period the fire department was promptly at the scene, and working heroically. The flames had made rapid headway, however, and the rear room was almost destroyed before a stream of water could be thrown upon the burning building, so attention was paid to the front part of the structure, and in probably half an hour the flames were extinguished, although the building was damaged to the extent of about $400.

In the rear room Mr. Chaffin had about $300 worth of tools and some little stock, all of which were consumed. The front room contained coffins and other stock to the value of nearly $1,000, the larger portion of which was saved.

Mr. Chaffin stated to a BAZOO reporter that his loss would foot up in the neighborhood of $500, on which he will be made whole, as he holds a policy for $800 on stock and $200 on tools in the North American company.

The building was owned by Mr. W. W. McNulty, who valued it at $900, and it was insured in the Franklin company, of Pennsylvania, for $600.

It is not definitely known how the fire originated, but the general supposition is that it was caused by a spark from the stove igniting a quantity of shavings which were lying on the floor. This, at least, is the opinion entertained by Mr. Chaffin, who states that there was a small fire in the stove when he went to supper.

Attempted Robbery.

A gentleman who came in from the south, this morning, informed a BAZOO reporter that the residence of C. P. Harry C. Moore, the merchant prince of Nevada, was entered by thieves between 12 and 1 o'clock Monday night. They entered by a rear window in a bed room, on the ground floor, going through the parlor and into the sleeping apartment of Mr. Moore and wife. When they entered the room the noise awakened Mrs. Moore, and she began to shriek for her husband, which aroused him. He at once arose and rushed after the person, who made exit, but only got a glimpse of one man, and could not tell who he was in the dark. Mr. Moore then dressed himself and went up town and called Marshal Duren, and the officer spent the remainder of the night looking for the thief, but up to the present time there is no clue to the guilty party.

Died.

At the residence of her mother, on Fourth street, between Lamine and Ohio, at half-past one yesterday evening, Miss Ella Elbert, aged 29 years.

Deceased had long been a sufferer and was as patient as mortal well could be. A little over a month ago she was forced to give up the school she was teaching at High Point, in this county, when she came to this city and has been confined to her bed ever since until death finally came to her relief. She was a devout member of the Christian church for many years. She leaves a mother, two brothers and two sisters to mourn her loss.

The funeral services were preached at the Christian church at 2 o'clock this evening by the Rev. J. H. Duncan, and the remains will be conveyed to Knobnoster, for interment in the family burying ground at that point.

Another Teacher Wanted.

Miss Georgia Jackson, a former well known teacher in our public schools, who, some months ago, accepted a situation as teacher in one of the public schools of Little Rock, Ark., writes back that she is well pleased with her situation and perfectly infatuated with Little Rock. She says the salary there is greater and the work less than in the Sedalia schools. She concludes by stating that another teacher is badly wanted by the school board of Little Rock, and here is a chance for some of our overworked and scantily paid teachers.

CARNES CAUGHT.

Terrible Accident to a K. & T. Brakeman at Clinton, Yesterday at Noon.

Mr. George Carnes, a K. & T. freight brakeman, arrived at the hospital last night, the victim of a terrible accident, which happened to him at Clinton about noon yesterday. He left Sedalia yesterday morning on local freight train No. 161, Conductor Liphard in charge, and arrived at Clinton about 11 o'clock. Some switching was necessary at that point, and in attempting to make a coupling, Carnes was caught between two cars, one of which was loaded with rails. The ends of the rails extended over the end of the car, and Carnes failed to take the precaution to stoop low enough to allow them to pass over his head, and when the cars came together, the rails caught him, striking him on the right ear and temple, crushing in the head.

Conductor Liphard saw the man's danger, and called out to him to stoop, but too late. The man was caught and held as firmly as though impaled until the train was moved forward, when he dropped to the ground. He was picked up and carried to the depot, and medical aid summoned. Dr. Menes was the first to reach the sufferer, and upon examination declared there was little or no hope. Dr. Jennings soon arrived, and coincided with Dr. Menes in his conclusions. The latter sent a telegram to Superintendent Wagner, of this city, to the effect that if Carnes was removed to the hospital it should be done speedily.

The injured man was in a semi-conscious state, and by questions it was ascertained that his name was Geo. Carnes, from Carroll county, and that he was a single man. He was not employed regularly on the road, but went out yesterday as an extra man. The physicians at the hospital pronounce Carnes in a critical condition, but he may be able to pull through.

Sudden Death.

From a gentleman who came down from Knob Noster this morning, a BAZOO reporter learned of the sudden death, from heart disease, of Mr. Peter Guibn, one of the most prominent Irish farmers in Johnson county, who lived seven miles northeast of Knob Noster. On Wednesday, the day preceding his death, Mr. Guibn was attending to customary farm duties. He was in the act of going to work again this morning, when he fell and expired. The remains of Mr. Guibn will arrive here by the 10:40 train in the morning, and will be interred in the Catholic cemetery of this city.

He Was Crooked.

Joe Howard is a comedian. His specialty is the personation of Chinamen. He seems to possess some moral defects of a Chinese sort. He was dropped from a traveling company in Chicago for drunkenness. One of the actresses met him in the street, and he told her that he was hungry and shelterless. She refused to give him money, fearing that he would spend it for whiskey, but bought him meal tickets and lodgings at a first-class hotel. After thus living on her bounty for a few days, he went to her room, ostensibly to thank her for her generosity; but when she turned her back for a moment he slipped her jewel case and wallet into his pocket, and was afterwards caught pawing the jewelry.

Another New Paper.

Sedalia's thriving sister city, Clinton, now boasts of a daily paper—the Advocate. And well she may boast, too, for a handsome little journal is not published in the state. It is a 6-column folio, with a patent inside. Unlike most publications of its kind, the home side presents a much handsomer typographical appearance than the patent, which is saying considerable, thank you. A glance at the advertisements is all that is necessary to tell that a first-class printer set 'em, and so it is in all the departments. The initial number is indeed creditable, and the BAZOO extends best wishes for success, with the hope that each succeeding number may be an improvement on the one at hand.

Accidentally Shot.

At Houtonia, about 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, John Harris was accidentally shot in the back, at the hands of John Ming. Ming, it appears, was shooting at a target with a 32-calibre target gun, and Harris was riding by. The ball hit the target, but glanced to one side, striking Harris as stated.

The wounded man was carried to a residence near by, where Drs. Riley and Longdon attended him. The ball was removed, and Harris will soon be able to be up and around again.

SEDALIA'S POPULATION.

Simmons, the Directory Man, Sets it at Between 17,000 and 18,000.

A BAZOO Reporter Gleaned Some Interesting Facts This Morning.

A BAZOO reporter was shown, this morning, the advance sheets of the directory of Sedalia and Pettis county, now being gotten out by Simmons & Kernodle. It will certainly be an invaluable work, as it will contain a complete directory of the city, giving the names of all its inhabitants, their occupation, residence, etc., and in addition a complete business directory of each town in Pettis county, giving the names and postoffice address of all the farmers, together with the number of acres owned or rented by each.

"How many names will the city portion of the directory contain, Mr. Simmons?" asked the BAZOO man.

"Between 5,000 and 6,000—I can't state the exact number yet."

"This would give Sedalia a population of how many?"

"Most western directories were, in counting the population, multiply the number of names obtained by 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ , but my experience goes to prove that to multiply by 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  gives nearer the correct number. I think it will be safe to say Sedalia has a population of very nearly 18,000."

"This, of course, includes the floating population."

"Yes, but that class does not foot up large—not more than 500."

"Can you give me the number of firms engaged in business in the city?"

"Not exactly. The different branches of business, including mercantile establishments, manufacturing interests and professions will reach probably over 700—not under that number, anyhow. Ten years ago they footed up 200, and four years ago, about 400. This shows how Sedalia has improved."

"The business directory of the county will contain how many names?"

"About 200, I should judge."

"And the general directory of the county?"

"In the neighborhood of 4,000 names."

"Making a total of how many in the directory complete?"

"Not less than 10,000."

"How many copies of the book will you print?"

"We have contracted for 800, but we should have received a patronage that would have enabled us to print 1,200. Sedalia isn't a good town for a directory man to acquire wealth in."

"When will the work be issued?"

"Sometime during February. We are pushing everything as rapidly as possible, and will lose no time in finishing the work in hand."

STUMPS THE SOLONS.

The Cedar County Idol Before the Savants of Smithsonian Institute.

It Is as Much a Mystery to Them as to the Denizens of Cedar County.

Those of the BAZOO readers who attended our last fair will remember the "Cedar county idol," which was on exhibition in a tent near the refreshment stand. This relic was called the Cedar county idol, from the fact that it was found in Cedar county, and was generally supposed to have been an idol worshipped by a race of aborigines long since extinct.

This archaeological specimen was not only a subject of great interest, discussion and investigation to the scientists of Sedalia, but excited a like interest wherever it was exhibited. The following description of the Cedar county wonder appeared in the BAZOO at the time it arrived in Sedalia:

The wonderful curiosity is most artistically carved out of stone of a dark grayish color, very much resembling sand stone. The design of the author seems to have been to form a combination representing animals of land, air and water, the reptile, fish and bird, although the longer one looks at the strange creation the more mystified he becomes, and the more numerous are the representations of the animal kingdom presented.

The general outline of the figure forms a somewhat striking resemblance to the crocodile. The head in many respects strongly resembles that of a rhinoceros. The upper jaw terminates in a beak similar to that of the eagle. The back of the head is evidently intended to represent that of the turtle, although there are some discrepancies in the likeness. A few inches back of the head is a pair of wing covers, resembling those of a beetle or flying dragon. On the belly are two raised plates, the notorious scallawag that the BAZOO has so industriously ventilated for the last four years. Mrs. Ellis obtained a divorce last March, in the Cooper county circuit court, and now has married again. The BAZOO hopes she may be happy, for she is a very worthy woman.

A Rare Find.

Mr. C. W. Denison, of Sullivan county, this state, the representative of a race fast disappearing, being a typical trapper and hunter, was in this city yesterday, on his way home from the extreme southwestern portion of the state, where he put in the winter hunting and trapping. While exploring the mountain gorges of Jack's Fork river, in Howell county, he found in a cave the skeleton of a species of the armadillo, the only one ever found in the state of Missouri. The old man secured the prize, and will take it home with him, notwithstanding the fact that Blair Bros. offered him a fancy price for it, being desirous of adding it to their museum, but he would not entertain the offer.

has made it the subject of deep study. The following letter will explain itself:

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION, WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.

DEAR SIR:—The so-called "idol" from Dade county is now in my hands but I am about returning it to the proprietors, who very kind indeed in sending it to me for examination. I also take this occasion to return my thanks to you for bringing it to my notice.

The whole object is totally incomprehensible to me. It has certainly absolutely nothing whatever to do with the aboriginal art. It appears to be a composition made by cementing certain parts of the figure made of very hard stone in a softer matrix. Whether manufactured for the purpose of deception, as was the Cardiff Giant, or simply as an illustration of what could be done in the way of Indian workmanship, it is difficult to say. It is certainly admirably done, and in a style of finish far beyond the power of any Indian to execute.

Yours truly,

W. BAIRD.

If any deception has been practiced in the getting up of this so-called idol, the owner, Mr. Riggs, is certainly not a party to it, and there is an entire absence of motive on the part of anyone else. The following is a true account of the circumstances under which the idol came in Mr. Riggs' possession:

J. R. Riggs is a small farmer of limited education and still more limited means, who was raised in Dade county, and was probably never a hundred miles from his home. Last spring he and his brother were on their way to Nevada, Mo., with a load of wool, and while crossing Horse creek, observed a strange looking stone projecting from the bank of the creek. They pulled it out from its partial imbedment and being struck with its peculiarities, threw it in the wagon and took it to Nevada, where it was shown to Capt. Harry Mitchell, of the Rockwood house. The Captain was at once impressed with the importance of the find and had it thoroughly cleaned, when the beauties of the relic were revealed. It was then exhibited by Mr. Riggs to a number of scientific gentlemen of Nevada, and it was the prevailing opinion that the object had at one time been worshipped as an idol, and of course had a peculiar significance to the idolaters who knelt at its shrine. How it happened to be imbedded in the banks of Horse creek, will probably ever remain a mystery, but an interesting one, nevertheless.

A World of Good.

One of the most popular medicines now before the American public is Hop Bitters. People take it with good effect. It builds them up. It is not as pleasant to the taste as some other bitters, as it is not a whisky drink. It is more like the old-fashioned bone-set tea, that has done a world of good. If you don't feel just right, try Hop Bitters.—Nevada News.

Considered a Curiosity.

The Kansas City Times of this morning is authority for the statement that Frank James has received, through Marshal Murphy, an offer from a New York museum, where the Ford boys were, to exhibit him self there in the event he is able to do so. The manager does not state what remuneration he will give, but says he will make "advantageous terms," and if James cannot go he is requested to announce it by postal card. No announcement has as yet been made. The idea of making a public exhibition of himself is said to be very repulsive to James.

'Tis Sad.

One of the sad features of the suspension of the Sedalia Dispatch is the probable loss of Martin Williams to the Democratic fold. He had barely completed the first verse of "I was a wandering sheep," and now he is again adrift to paddle around in the deep waters of greenbackery. Something ought to be done for Martin. He has done the Democratic party more service than any three greenbackers in the state. He deserves a pension.—Kansas City Times.

A Good Word for the BAZOO.

The following letter is from a well-known Sedalia gentleman, employed as a commercial traveler:

ON THE ROAD, Jan. 29.

EDITOR BAZOO: God bless the BAZOO for the sentiments expressed, with so much courage, in the editorial entitled, "Are They Consistent?" All true men and women will endorse the editorial and commend you for writing it. When I say "true" I mean every christian, every moral, every sensible and respectable man and woman in Missouri.

Why should you, or any other decent man, care for the approbation or disapproval of those who have no respect for themselves? We rejoice that there is one partisan paper in Sedalia with sufficient courage and independence to criticize and show up the foolish inconsistency of the general assembly of our state. All good citizens will congratulate you on the success of the BAZOO—a success achieved without pandering to the whisky interests. "May the Lord take a liking to ye."

Most Respectfully,

Married.

January 19, at Booneville, Mo., by Rev. Mahan, Mrs. Geo. D. Ellis to Samuel Hood, of Mommouth, Illinois.

Mrs. Ellis was the wife of G. D. Ellis, the notorious scallawag that the BAZOO has so industriously ventilated for the last four years. Mrs. Ellis obtained a divorce last March, in the Cooper county circuit court, and now has married again. The BAZOO hopes she may be happy, for she is a very worthy woman.

WINZENBURG'S WOE.

His Fine Country Residence, Two Miles South of Sedalia, Burned to the Ground.

All of the Contents, Including Seventy Thousand Cigars, Also Destroyed.

A. W. Winzenburg's dwelling, situated about two miles south of Sedalia, burned this morning, at about seven o'clock.

The fire originated in a room on the ground floor, in the northwest corner of the building, and caught from a defective flue. A fire had just been built in the room a few minutes before a blaze was discovered by Mr. Richtie, a carpenter, who was engaged by Mr. Winzenburg to do some repairing on one of the out-buildings. A young woman employed as help next gave the alarm, and Mr. and Mrs. Winzenburg, who had not yet arisen, were informed of their danger and at once began to fight the flames, which were busy at work between the weather boarding and the inside of the room, which was ceiling up and down with pine flooring. This situation of the fire made it the harder to fight, but Mr. W. did not lose his presence of mind. He worked heroically to save that which sheltered his family, but in vain, and the building was soon a mass of ruins.

The house was completed eighteen months ago, and was an elegant two story frame, with a double veranda in front and a porch on the south side—facing east.

A lot of fine tobacco was stored in the cellar, which Mr. Winzenburg, who also conducts the manufacture of cigars, had just purchased at a bargain and placed there. On the south porch was another lot of tobacco, which would have been manufactured into cigars but for the loss.

The fire was thought to be under control shortly after it started, but not long afterwards the flame made its way through the roof and soon spread over the whole building, having a strong wind from the northwest that favored the fire fiend.

Nothing was saved except a few pictures, a mattress and sofa. Five men were on the premises at the time, but they seemed to have lost all presence of mind, and this, together with the fact they were trying to subdue the fire, caused them to lose, until too late, all opportunity to rescue any of the furniture.

All the inmates of the house, except a babe about a month old, were soon out of the doomed building, and when the flames had claimed the house, Mr. Winzenburg thought of his child in the second story, and rushed in to save it, at a great risk of losing his own life, and now he feels that the saving of it gives him far more satisfaction than would that of rescuing all the furniture and property.

There was some insurance on the building, the amount of which, owing to the confusion and mixture of papers and policies, has not yet been ascertained. About sixty or seventy thousand cigars and all the tobacco and furniture are thought to be a total loss.

The burned building was erected some twelve or fourteen years ago by Mr. Marshall, who fell dead in this city about eight years ago. He never finished the structure, however, and Mr. Winzenburg, son-in-law of deceased, purchased the premises, farm and all, and finished the building in a handsome style. It was one of the finest farm houses in the county, and was worth probably $8,000.

Winzenburg, in 1867, had a cigar manufactory and store on West Main street, in the place where the Age printing office is now located. It was the night of Nov. 7th, 1867, a fire broke out in the room where Charles A. Dexter's store now is, and destroying everything to the corner, thence across Main street, and also destroying the old McKissock house. Winzenburg lost nearly everything in that fire, including his gold watch.

Killed by the Cars.

Mr. E. A. Carpenter, city circulator for the Democrat, had one of his ponies killed at the Grand avenue crossing of the K. & T. road between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning. A few minutes previous to the first hour mentioned he drove his team up in front of the Democrat office, and stepped inside to look after the papers he was to take out on his route.

When he returned, a few minutes later, the ponies were missing, and for a time he was at a loss to know in which direction they had gone. He finally tracked them to Ohio street, and thence south for quite a distance, when they went west and struck Grand avenue.

The animals must have reached the railway crossing just as the south-bound passenger train was passing, as one of the horses was found dead by the side of the track a short time thereafter. The other animal escaped without a scratch, but the buggy was somewhat demolished. Mr. Carpenter places his loss at about $60.

A Decrepit Old Beggar of 13

From the New York Sun.

Mr. Chiardi, of the children's society, thought he saw an old woman and two children, all three in rags, begging in Maiden Lane yesterday morning. He spoke to them in Italian. The old woman looked down, striving to hide her face. "Here look up," commanded Agent Chiardi. "Why, you are not an old woman; you are only a little girl."

Then the pseudo old woman fell to crying. She told the agent that she had been born in Italy of a beggar family, and had been trained in the hereditary craft. A month ago she arrived here with her brother and sister. They live at 41 Mulberry street. She said that her name was Giuseppea Popiani, and her age 13. She is tall for her age, and gaunt, bent and hollow cheeked. She had rubbed coal dust under and around her eyes and in the hollows of her cheeks to help her make-up. When she had been washed she looked 17. All three children were held, and will be sent to some institution.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

Sent Home.

Some days ago Mrs. R. L. Jamison, of Moberly, arrived in this city with her two children, on her way to Salt Lake City, where her husband was employed on one of the railroads centering there. Upon arriving here she received a telegram informing her that her husband had been crushed to death while attending to his duties. Of course this put an end to her journey, and her grief knew no bounds. She repaired to the residence of Mrs. Halleck, whom she had known in her girlhood days, and remained with her until today, when she took the train for Moberly. The railroad men of this city raised her a very pretty little purse before her departure, for which she was very grateful, as her finances were at low ebb.

Stole an Overcoat.

Yesterday morning, at Nevada, when the L. & N. train arrived, at 3:45, a drummer for a St. Louis house left the coach and entered the depot to procure refreshments, leaving his fine $50 overcoat lying on a seat in the car. He was absent but a few minutes, but on returning found the coat missing. He at once proceeded up town and informed the authorities of the theft, but no arrests have yet been made, although a certain party is under surveillance.
